

Ace Of Sleuths Held As Master Mind In Robbery

Post Office Inspector Is Charged With Planning
Rondout Train Holdup

'FRAMEUP,' SUSPECT SAYS

Inspectors Working on Case
Claim Fahy Is in Possession of Part of Booty

By Associated Press
Chicago—Charged with being the master mind in the $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Ill., on June 12 which he took a leading part in investigating, William F. Fahy, postoffice inspector, was held in the Kane-co jail at Geneva Wednesday in bonds of $50,000. He was arrested in his private office in the federal building late Tuesday after warrants had been issued on complaint of five eastern inspectors.

Fahy who was regarded as an ace among postal operatives and who obtained the evidence which sent "Big Tim" Murphy and his alleged accomplices to federal prison for the Dearborn station $338,000 robbery three years ago, charged the arrest was due to a "frame up" by criminal enemies and professional rivals. He will be arraigned Sept. 6.

COMPLICITY IS CHARGED

The specific charge against Fahy is complicity with Max Greenberg and Sam Grant, fugitives previously named as ring leaders in the robbery, to steal the ten sacks of registered mail taken from the mail train after bandits had halted it and subdued the mail clerks with tear bombs and pistol shots.

According to inspectors working on the case, it is believed Fahy is in possession of a considerable part of the loot. Fahy has been watched ever since a few days after the robbery. Chief Postal Inspector C. H. Claraham of New York said. He stated that inspectors have followed Fahy to places where they say he met the men with whom he is charged with conspiring.

Fahy said he supposed the complaint was based on his communication with James Murray, a Chicago politician, arrested in connection with the robbery and released on bonds. Murray has always been a friend of his and has assisted him in his government work, Fahy said.

START MOVEMENT FOR NEW BALLOTS

Several Counties Seek to Put Out Third Sample Ballot

Madison—A movement has been started in several counties to put out a third sample ballot of Progressive Republican candidates in next week's primary, according to communications coming to Progressive headquarters here Wednesday. The new ballots, it is said, include only the names of those candidates endorsed by Senator LaFollette.

The movement, it is said, is an effort to counteract the ballots being circulated by Blaine and Comings supporters, one including the name of Theodore Damman and the other the name of Lieutenant Governor Comings for governor.

The new ballots will be circulated in practically every county in the state. It is said, copies of the ballots were received here Wednesday.

STATE SECRETARY DENIES CHARGE OF GOVERNOR BLAINE

Zimmerman Says Complaint
Based on Refusal to Sign
Huge Appropriations

By Associated Press
Milwaukee—The alleged claim made by Governor J. J. Blaine that Fred Zimmerman, secretary of state, at times refused to cooperate with him, was answered here Wednesday in a formal statement, issued by Zimmerman in which he states that the only cause the governor has to charge him with failure to cooperate is based on Zimmerman's refusal to agree to vast appropriations asked by the governor but not sanctioned by the legislature.

Zimmerman's statement, says, in part:

"In the face of his own criticism of the law (emergency fund law) Governor Blaine, during the year, called me to his office, and to my surprise, asked me to join him in appropriating hundreds of thousands of the people's money without legislative sanction. I took the position that this was establishing a vicious principal and refused to sign. During the past year Governor Blaine and another state official over my objection have appropriated under this emergency law, hundreds of thousands of dollars without legislative sanction. My refusal to be a party to this practice is what the governor means when he says I refuse to cooperate with him. Senator LaFollette has asked the voters of Wisconsin to elect me to the office of secretary of state. Governor Blaine takes a slap at the senator by advising the voters to repudiate Senator LaFollette's endorsement."

Burglars At Dale Get $135 But Overlook $1,300

Two burglars who robbed three business places in Dale of approximately $135 at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning overlooked $1,300 in one of the safes they opened. The pair was obliged to flee when Mrs. Harlow Rouse, wife of the Dale druggist, discovered them. They are still at large and Otto Wickert, under sheriff, is working on the case.

Ernest Nelson, who conducts a general store, was the heaviest loser. Gaining entrance through a window, the pair got into the safe and took about $4 in cash and two liberty bonds of $50 each. The other two safes had been left unlocked and the inner doors were propped open by a chisel. They also took about $12 which was in the cash drawer.

Mr. Nelson had $800 worth of Liberty bonds and $500 in certificates of deposit hidden within the pages of a ledger in the safe. The robbers did not disturb the ledger. The men made their exit through the warehouse connected with the store.

Thorwald Breit's meat market was entered by removing a screen from an open window. The cash register was empty of its contents of $12.20. The burglars went out by the rear door, as it was found unlocked by Mr. Breit.

More robberies probably would have taken place in the village had they not made so much noise trying to enter the Harlow Rouse drug store. The Rouse family lives in the upper story and Mrs. Rouse was awakened. She got out of bed and walked across the floor to the stairway to see what the disturbance was. The noise of her footsteps caused the men to flee. She caught only a glimpse of them as they ran. A window had been pried open with a chisel. All that was missing was a quantity of cigars.

Marks on the door of the John Steffen elevator showed that they had tried to enter that place.

WILSON CO. BACK ON STOCK MARKET

Chicago Packing Concern Resumes Business After 24-Hour Lapse

By Associated Press
Chicago—Wilson and Co., packers after appointment of federal receivers Tuesday in New York city, was back in the livestock market in the stockyards Wednesday.

This was indicated by former Judge Julius Mayer, receiver, in his statement in New York Tuesday night that uninterrupted service of Wilson and Co. would be followed.

The company had been out of the livestock market for 24 hours as a result of the appointment of a temporary receiver at Trenton, N. J., without notice to the company. Pending some order by the receiver or action to supersede that at Trenton, the company could do nothing. The federal receivership in New York and former Judge Mayer's announcement that the company would resume business as usual, released the concern.

The receivers appointed by United States District Judge Bondy in New York are Thomas E. Wilson, president of the company, former Circuit Judge Julius M. Mayer and Robert Lee Morrell, an attorney.

JUSTICE LAUDS DEAD JURIST IN SCHOOL ADDRESS

Judge Jenkins Is Subject of Speech at Dedication of
New University Building

By Associated Press
Milwaukee—In a dedicatory address marking the formal opening of the new Marquette university college of law before a great crowd of former students, present students, lawyers, judges and state officials, Justice Burr W. Jones of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, Madison, Wednesday paid high tribute to the memory of the late J. G. Jenkins, former Milwaukee jurist and one who was actively identified with the early struggles of the college of law. Speaking of Judge Jenkins, the orator said:

"Judge Jenkins for many years held his place as one of few recognized leaders of the Wisconsin bar. As a brilliant advocate, a learned lawyer, a gentleman of the highest sense, an earnest worker for good government and a lover of his fellowmen, he was indeed one of the Wisconsin's favorite sons. He crowned his long legal career by distinguished service on the federal bench. After he had long paid his debt to the profession he loved, and while descending happily and peacefully the hillside of life, he gave freely to this college of law the prestige of his name, his culture, learning and ripe experience. It was for him a labor of love and it won for him the affection of those who listened to his inspiring words."

Justice Jones spoke in place of Judge E. Ray Stevens, Madison, who could not be present. He traced the early history of law schools from the beginning of the Inns of court in England to the early struggles of the American schools.

The speaker pleaded for a deeper study of the common law as a patriotic duty, and as leading to a better understanding of the rights and privileges enjoyed by the American people.

Prosecuting Attorney Claims Youths Needed Cash to Pay Gambling Debts

CALLS DEFENSE UNCANNY

State's Attorney Quotes Statutes in Place of Poetry and Philosophy

By Associated Press
Chicago—Money was "the controlling motive" in the kidnapping and murder of young Bobby Franks, State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe, said Wednesday in continuing his plea before Judge John R. Caverly for the death penalty for Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb.

He read at length from a private report of two of the defense attorneys which he said "never had been intended for the state's attorney excerpts which he declared revealed unwittingly the real motive of the crime."

"Money, money, money," shouted the prosecutor. "It is all through this case. And I will show later they needed it to pay gambling debts."

From the outset the explosive argument of the prosecutor drew the objection of the defense counsel, and an ensuing wrangle on technicalities called from Chief Justice John R. Caverly, to whom falls the duty of fixing sentence, the quiet and firm declaration that the court will not consider any argument outside of the record.

CROWE IS IRRITATED

Mr. Crowe once visibly irritated by the objections of the defense, turned vigorously upon the bench to assert: "They have been quoting poetry and philosophy here for four days; I don't see why we can't have a little citation from the law."

"We have heard everything that is in the books and of a great deal that never got into the books from the three wise men from the east, brought in by the defense; but nobody has ventured to give this mental disease a name," said Mr. Crowe.

He then endeavored again to describe the court proceedings in a case in which the defense was found by aliens to have been the victim of a "newly discovered mental disease."

He was charged with the citation by defense objection and the court ruling, but not before he voiced the charge that "this too is a newly discovered mental disease—discovered by the three wise men from the east after every other possible avenue of escape has been sealed."

"They tell us that Loeb read detective stories and that's a bad sign," said Mr. Crowe a bit later. "Well I remember when I used to crawl under the bed and read Nick Carter. What's that's not a bad sign, that's normal for boys."

Mr. Crowe charged that the boys had been "advised" what to say to the defense attorneys in their examination in the county jail. He charged that the youths collaborated with the attorneys and the doctors in improvising "this weird and uncanny defense."

WOULD SUPPRESS DETAILS

The state's attorney read an excerpt from the celebratory Hubert-Bowman report which one of the authors had testified "never had been intended to be read by the prosecutor." The excerpt said there would be "a certain legal advantage in the suppression of some of the details of the boy's mental processes."

"Who is the trickster in this case?" the state's attorney asked. "Is it Mr. Darrow who has charged the state's attorney with such tactics, or is it some one else?"

Mr. Crowe referred to four episodes in Loeb's life mentioned in the report only as "A," "B," "C" and "D."

"I charge that Leopold knew what they were," he shouted. "I charge that Leopold blackmailed Loeb with those episodes and gained his ascendancy over Loeb by threatening to expose him if Loeb did not submit to him."

The prosecutor said too that money was the compelling motive in the crime.

"They gambled for such high stakes that not even their millionaire companions could stand the pace," he said. "They had to have money. They conceived the idea of this crime not for a thrill, but for money."

"Money, money, money." It is all through this case. Yet Mr. Darrow said it was only a case of two poor little rich boys wandering in the dark looking for a teddy bear."

Standard Bearers Of Major Parties Lose Confidence In Race

Democratic and Republican Leaders Would Be Doubtful
of Result If Vote Were Taken Tomorrow.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright 1924 by the Post Pub. Co.
New York—What is really going on inside the two big political camps nowadays will hardly be discerned from the optimistic publicity which the Republicans and Democrats are issuing, nor will it be gleaned from the confident utterances of the nominees.

But the truth of the matter is there is not any real confidence underneath. Many and various are the conjectures and hopes with respect to who will have the advantage in the campaign. The Republicans are in the lead, but the Democrats have toured and raided the country. Yet if the election were held tomorrow—it's an oft-used phrase to express the actual situation at the moment—the leaders of the Republican as well as Democratic parties would be doubtful as well as nervous about the outcome to the point of expecting a close result.

The inside task of "landslide" is slowly vanishing. It's to be a real race. Sometimes when the managers do not talk for quotation they give an insight to their real feelings, their fears and their true calculations.

From Republican sources comes the well guarded statement that the LaFollette tide is ebbing and that were the election held tomorrow it would be dangerous but that the conditions will send votes now inclined to LaFollette back to Coolidge.

CONFIDENCE IS NEEDED

These comments on the situation are not the kind that will be publicly admitted, for politics is a game in which the strategy of confidence is supposed to play an important part. The politicians frequently think, and so do some partisans, that campaigns are won by propaganda which is to have the word for artificial publicity. But they are not.

Misrepresentation swings a number of votes but every election usually shows a definite trend based upon some fundamental conviction ingrained, not during the campaign, but in the months when the candidates were on their natural and presumably non-political behavior. What ever impressions the country has of the rugged character of Calvin Coolidge were obtained in the few months after he took oath of office.

So it is with the Democratic cause. The impression of John W. Davis' character and intellectual ability which was conveyed to the country when the attention of everybody was focused on the Democratic national convention already is implanted as is every phase of his career as a lawyer and a public official.

In a nutshell, the men who bet on elections are simply venturesome individuals who enjoy the sport of gambling, for at the moment the political situation is so full of cross-currents that anyone who feels sure of the outcome has usually a wish father to the thought. The political managers themselves know in their hearts the situation is not a certainty for any candidate.

TRANSFER VALID. BEGLINGER RULES

Oshkosh—Judge Fred Beglinger in circuit court has handed down a decision holding valid and binding a transfer of business property made in 1909 by Miss Elizabeth Bierman of Xeneph to Lemke and Schultz, contractors. Miss Bierman owned a piece of land and started erection of a business block. He funds ran out and the property was transferred to the contractors by an instrument, under which she was to have power to redeem the property within three years. Joseph W. Bierman, her brother, sought to have the instrument set aside, but the court held that the failure of the plaintiff and his sister to act within the three years prescribed was a bar to repossession at this time. The value of the property has greatly enhanced since the transaction.

A. G. KOCH AGAIN IS FIRST TO GET HUNTING LICENSE

Nimrods Rush to Get Permits As Fall Hunting Season Opens

With the trout season closing this week, fishing isn't what it used to be, and the huntersmen soon will have their inning. The 1924-25 supply of hunting licenses arrived at the office of John E. Hantschel, county clerk, Monday, and the usual spokesmen for the first licenses were on hand to claim their annual rights.

Albert G. Koch, register of deeds, purchased the first license, having paid for that privilege some months past. Koch has had License No. 1 every year for the last 20 years. Other nimrods who were quite nimble in their applications were Thomas Flanagan, holder of the second license issued; William Rolf, Hortonville; Fred Turfitt, Shiocton; Gust Knorr, Appleton; William Thorn, Jr., New London; John Savall, Jr., New London; R. Frank Eisch, Appleton; Herbert W. Perske, Appleton.

Mr. Hantschel will keep his office open every Saturday afternoon for the benefit of hunters who find it impossible to come at other times. Hunters may also renew their licenses by mail by sending in their last year's license and remitting $1. The deer tags, which will be 50 cents each, will not arrive until Sept. 15, but may be purchased then by the license holder who shows his license. Mr. Hantschel received 3,700 hunting licenses, 200 trapping licenses, 4,000 trapping tags, and later will receive 550 deer tags, which is the amount sold last year.

Several sub-stations will be arranged for the sale of licenses. ABSENTEE VOTERS CALL FOR ELECTION BALLOTS

Quite a number of applications for absentee voters' ballots are being received by John F. Hantschel, county clerk, which seems to indicate that a large vote will be registered on primary election day, Sept. 2. There have been no requests from sick persons for ballots. Those who are hindered from going to the polls on election day on account of illness must submit a doctor's certificate before a ballot can be issued to them.

COMMON AILMENTS OF MIDDLE AGE

Are indicated in women by nervous conditions, irritability, melancholia, pains and aches in the back, dizzy spells, headaches and heat flashes. These trying conditions may be easily overcome and such symptoms controlled by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It will interest women to know that in a recent canvass among over one hundred and twenty-one thousand women, ninety-eight out of every hundred reported benefit from its use.

DON'T KNOW WHAT TO DO WITH BLAINE ELECTION TICKET

Governor Indorses Dammann and League Voted to Aid Zimmerman

The last meeting of the Farmer-Labor and Progressive League of Outagamie-co before primary election will be held Saturday evening in the Appleton Trades and Labor hall. Reports will be made by committee chairmen of the various towns, and final preparations will be made in order to bring out a large vote on primary election day.

It is indefinite what action will be taken by the league towards circulating the Blaine Progressive Republican state ticket folders issued by the Blaine camp. The circular contains the name of Theodore Dammann, candidate for secretary of state, together with Blaine, Huber, Eklund and Levitan. But the local Farmer-Labor league had previously endorsed Fred R. Zimmermann for secretary of state who has also the indorsement of Senator LaFollette.

Y. M. C. A. CAMPAIGN WILL OPEN SEPT. 30

At a meeting of the membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. Monday noon the opening date of the membership campaign was set for Tuesday, Sept. 30, and will be preceded the previous evening by the usual banquet for workers. It will continue for three days. It is planned to secure a membership of 1,000 men and 400 boys which is slightly in excess of the membership last year. The rates were discussed, but it was decided to make only minor readjustments. College memberships will remain the same as last year. Favorable reports were being received from the letters mailed to members concerning the new list of prospects.

ON THE SCREEN

RECOIL

The latest of Rex Beach's photoplays is "Recoil," based upon a short story of that title. The production was made by J. Parker Read, Jr. and directed by T. Hayes Hunter. It was shown yesterday at the Elite theatre and proved to be as highly colored, as thrilling and dramatic as any production that has been made of a Rex Beach story.

The proportion was made in its entirety in France and the scenes from the watering resort, Deauville, and from the French Riviera are extremely beautiful and fascinating.

PAGAN PASSIONS

Pagan Passions, with Wyndham Standing, Rosemary Theby, Tully Marshall, Sam DeGrasse, Raymond McKee, Barbara Bedford and June Elvidge, is scheduled to make its debut in Appleton at the Elite theatre on Thursday.

The story which came from the versatile brain of the greatly gifted Grace Sanderson Michie, deals with the temptations which beset the white men and women who live even if only for a short time, in the tropics. Mrs. Michie has the enviable faculty of making her characters honest-to-goodness folks with their faults and virtues so intermingled that one just can't help sympathizing with their misfortunes and rejoicing in their triumphs. In Pagan Passions, which is said to be a cinema masterpiece, she portrays the sinking of a fascinating woman to the uttermost depths of degradation and then through a stifled and almost extinguished spark of motherhood she redeems herself by an act of supreme self-sacrifice.

CHARLOTTE WALKERS

BIGGEST STAGE SUCCESS

Just a Wife at the New Bijou theatre to day and Thursday, will strike local theatregoers as a thoroughly satisfactory photoplay. The story written by Eugene Walter, author of Paid in Full, The Wolf, and other well known successes, was adapted for screen use by Katherine Reed without being weakened in the slightest. Leatrice Joy, Kathryn Williams and Roy Stewart, in the leading roles, do convincing work and as a consequence the interest is held from the first scene to the last. The production is elaborate, particularly effective being some of the exteriors showing the country estate of a Railroad King of America. The picture, it is said, was made on the Pacific Coast and certainly these exteriors suggest that land where Nature has painted with such lavish colors.

APATHETIC VOTER WILL BE TARGET OF SCOUT DRIVE

Keicher Calls Appleton Committee to Sanction Citizenship Drive

Posters and literature campaigns to make the people of Appleton become good citizens and vote in the fall election will be discussed by Appleton district boy scout committee at a meeting called for next Tuesday evening at the headquarters in Insurance-bldg by Walter Joyce, president.

Membership of the committee is not quite complete but more men will be added before that time. The committee contains representatives of various churches, civic clubs and educational institutions.

P. O. Keicher, scout executive, has received samples of the vote campaign literature from the national scout headquarters and will submit them to the committee with request that the plan be approved. The time will be too late to do anything concerning the primary balloting but the city will be covered thoroughly in the appeal for November voting.

Mr. Keicher asks that all who now belong to boy scout troops urge their parents and neighbors to go to the polls next Tuesday to vote. He will try to reach as many boys as possible with this same appeal.

It is pointed out in the literature that the United States is showing an alarming apathy in the duty of voting, giving justice to the argument that the government is controlled by well organized minorities. Figures standing out on the posters show that the balloting has dwindled from 80 per cent of the voting strength in 1896 to 49 per cent in 1920.

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Create Gas, Sourness and Pain How To Treat

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestants are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Inspect Taps For Leaks And Save Money

"Inspect taps frequently for small leaks." is a bit of advice that appears on the rear of every water bill, and advice that may save the consumer considerable expense.

The waste of water must be paid for by the consumer, for the public utility laws of the state of Wisconsin prohibit the Appleton water department as well as any other utility from making rebates or concessions to consumers because of leakage. The rule is "All water passing through the meter must be paid for," and meters are considered accurate measuring devices.

How expensive even the smallest of leaks may be can be learned from a computation made by Fred R. Morris, office manager of the water department. An opening of 1-16 of an inch, at 55 pounds pressure and 127.1 foot head, will emit a total of .86 gallons of water per minute. This amounts to 6.88 cubic feet an hour, or approximately 15,000 cubic feet in a quarter of a year. According to the rates paid in Appleton, the cost of a leak of that size would be $21.13.

Second Place in Race

Maurice A. Peerenboom, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Peerenboom, who is at the Citizens Military Training camp at Camp Custer, Mich., recently won second place in the 200-yard dash and also was a member of the winning relay team in the camp field and track events.

GRANT CHAIRMAN OF C. E. BANQUET

Wilbur Grant of Memorial Presbyterian society will be toastmaster at the banquet of the Green Bay District Christian Endeavor union at the First Congregational church next Saturday evening. It was decided by the convention committee at a meeting at the latter church Sunday.

Mr. Grant will take the place of Prof. R. H. Hannum, who asked to be relieved inasmuch as he appears on the program in two other sessions of the convention, which will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Arrangements were made to decorate the Presbyterian church, where all but the banquet will be held. The Christian Endeavor colors, red and white, will predominate.

Another meeting of the convention committee has been called for 7:45 Thursday evening at the First Congregational church by Willis Elsner, chairman.

CANDIDATES MUST FILE EXPENSE STATEMENTS

Candidates for county and state legislative offices of this county must file a statement of their campaign expenses this week, according to an announcement by John F. Hantschel, county clerk. Saturday will be the last day for filing expenses. On the Saturday following primary election day, candidates must file their post-primary election expenses, Mr. Hantschel said.

MOTOR TRUCK AND RAILROADS

The Pennsylvania railroad has been experimenting in the east with the substitution of motor trucks for the freight train on certain of its branch lines. It is said the company is well satisfied with the results thus far. The trial of the plan raises the question whether railroads generally throughout the country will not find it to their advantage to employ the motor truck themselves as auxiliaries for the final distribution of less than carload lots and as a means for generating freight.

The motor truck is already proving to be a serious contender for way freight business. In some instances the trucking is from shipper to purchaser, that is, from door to door. Even where it is not, it has been supplanting short rail hauls largely because of the promptness and convenience of the service.

Some street railway systems in the larger cities have made a similar experiment with the motor bus, by installing lines of their own to operate in conjunction with the main system and in territories not provided with trolley service. We see no reason why railroad companies could not install motor truck lines in conjunction with their systems. Not only could short-haul shipments of freight be readily handled, but less than carload lots could be conveniently carried from convenient terminal points possibly quicker than it is now delivered.

It should be a matter of preservation with the railroad companies. They have a tremendous investment and if they are deprived of the earnings from local business it will seriously impair their revenues and financial strength. The public would prefer, we think, to have trucking done by the railroads if they wish to engage in this business as auxiliary to their principal service.

SAVE THIS FOR A BLUE DAY

Even when life is most unpleasant, you have more pleasure than unhappiness. You don't believe it. Then you are in dispute with Professor J. C. Flugel, senior lecturer in philosophy and psychology in University college, London. Professor Flugel got the notion that pleasure always outbalances displeasure. To prove it, he had nine men live "an unpleasant life" for a month. They jotted down, in their note books, every feeling they experienced. Averaging the scores, Flugel found that, out of every 100 feelings or emotions experienced by his investigators, 68 were pleasant and only 32 unpleasant. The gloomiest man of the crowd was amazed to learn, when he finally checked up, that he had been happy 46 per cent of the time, unhappy 36 per cent, and "on the fence" the rest of his month.

Examining the note book records, Professor Flugel found that there are 22 main causes of pleasure and 24 for displeasure. Many are not as important as we imagine at the time. Food produces a pleasurable feeling amounting to less than 6 per cent of a person's total emotions. "tender emotion less than 1 per cent, companionship and society, only a quarter of 1 per cent of the total. Fatigue, it was learned, is responsible for less than 4 per cent of all emotions, sorrow 1 per cent, embarrassment a half of one per cent.

One trouble with compiling statistics of emotions is that a thing may cause pleasure on one occasion and displeasure on another. For example: The fragrant odors of a well-cooked dinner are highly pleasing to a hungry man. But the reaction is apt to be the opposite if the same man has just gorged himself on the same food. Nothing is quite as enticing as the thing we can't have. In fact, according to another authority, Professor J. W. Bridges, it is only when instinct is thwarted that emotion develops.

But the London experiment seems to show that there is more pleasure than pain in the world, even when life is not running smoothly. A good thing to remember when we are blue. And, too, we could not experience pleasant emotions to serve as contrast. Joy and pain—physical, mental or emotional—are matters of contrast.

"GOD KNOWS"

It is not improbable that the bob-hair "phantasy," as we alienists may be inclined to call it, is a matter of cycles. In a spirit of lewity, it might even be said that it has all the appearance of having been attained by application of sickles, but let that pass. The main point is that bob-hair is not new or original with this age or moment, nor is the wrath it excites without precedent.

As far back as 250 years ago, we learn from a letter written by John Chamberlain of London—John was some writer in his day—the women of England went on such a short-hair debauch as to reduce "their men folks, and even royalty," to a state that was "almost frantic." Indeed, the indignant and outraged king ordered the bishop of London to call his clergy together "to inveigh vehemently against the insolencies of our women, and they're wearing of brode brimed hats, pointed dublets, they're hair cut short or shorne." In addition and significantly, the king gave it out straight that, "if pulpit admonitions will not reform them, I will proceed by another course."

Mr. Chamberlain was so sadly impressed by the conduct of the clipped women that he closed his lugubrious letter with this comment on the situation and the king's order: "The truth is, the world is very much out of order, but whether this well mende it God knows."

That, mind you, was 250 years ago—in 1680 to be exact—and here we are again and with no king to interfere. The world thenadays, as it had been from the moment Adam and Eve violated the law of domicile, was galloping toward the devil despite the efforts of its disturbed royalty and frantic men. Today, short-sighted, short-changed and short-haired, it is doing the same thing again, or yet, according to those who claim to know. Always, always headed for the devil. And what "will mende it God knows."

ON THE SANDLOTS

THERE really is pleasure in watching mere youth out flirtin' with fresh, open air. You can't help but know, when it comes to truth, that they're trappin' good health in its lair. The youth of today are the old, after while, and the strength that they build, seems to me, means much, years to come, to the rank and the file and to what this great country's to be. Let's turn to the sandlots no matter just where, and what will we generally find? Real youth in its glory is bound to be there, filled with pep of the genuine kind. There's exercise plenty and laughter galore; real contests of strength, now and then. And youth plays around till its muscles are sore as it's building to women and men. No wonder there's pleasure in watching mere youth. No wonder the grownups will smile. What ever the world is today, it's the truth, that with health, 'twill improve after while. ## Health Talks

Noted Physician and Author

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writer's names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column. All letters will be answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. ## STOP THAT WORRYING

From what I may fairly call the voluminous correspondence I have with readers—or rather the readers have it with me—one thing seems clear: By the time a lot of plain people feel they're sick enough to consult a physician they're so sick the physician can hold out little hope for them. It is the old question again, you see: Just where does health and disease begin? Is there a dividing line anywhere between health and disease, and if so, how's a fellow to know when he crosses the line, goes over or coming? When is any one sick enough to seek medical advice or care? Won't the family doctor, busy man that he is, just laugh at minor complaints and make one feel foolish for having consulted him, after all? Rather than run the chance of being caught in such a horrible predicament as that, shouldn't a fellow indulge in a little self-diagnosis and self-treatment, as long as the trouble isn't actually disabling? Of course it's merely a functional ailment at present—of course it can't be of any importance, therefore—and just look at the great array of sure-fire nostrums, both medicinal, which are available at prices to suit all reasonably fat pocketbooks? So why run to the doctor with a little complaint? Any fellow is fool enough to be his own doctor for the minor, trifling, merely functional troubles, at least.

You know, folks, I pose as a health expert. I pretend to have some special knowledge of health and to give advice about health and hygiene to readers who want it. I do not give advice about disease, either the diagnosis or treatment of disease. So it would seem that I must draw a line somewhere between health and disease, that I may separate out the queries which have to do with health matters proper and answer them, leaving the queries that have to do with disease to chuck into the waste basket. I do draw a line but I draw it with a very broad pen. There's a considerable breadth of borderland between health and disease, a gradual, imperceptible merging from one to the other, just as the blue of the sky merges into the green of the sea. Of course if I were to draw my line mathematically correct, we'd have to install a battery of mechanical chucks and an endless chain carrier for waste baskets here in the office. But I ain't narrow or mean about this—I make short runs considerably past the imaginary line if I think I see a chance of doing any good.

In the past it was the practice for doctors to try to draw a line between functional and organic disease. They do so no more, because pathology has taught the truth, that all disease is functional and organic from first to last, be it acute or chronic, as to duration, self-limited or not, curable or not, preventable or inevitable.

Likewise the layman should stop deceiving himself about the condition of his health. If he fears it is not all right, then he must be sick enough to seek medical attention. As a plain proposition of happiness, the enjoyment of life, he needs medical attention. As a matter of business efficiency, he needs medical attention. It is not a thing to gamble on. It is a foolish thing to worry about. The time to go to a physician is a year before you are convinced you've got to have one.

Gamble In War Bonds Of Germany

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—Bankers consulted by clients seeking counsel as to what to do with spare money have long been prone to advise putting it into bonds. To the point that bonds yield small returns and rarely if ever increase in value the reply has been, "Yes, but they are safe, and it's investment we're talking about, not speculation."

Bonds have been regarded almost universally as the acme of conservatism in investment and the antithesis of all things pertaining to gambling or speculation. The man who invented bonds may well have been the originator of the "safety first" slogan.

There was no get-rich-quick lure about bonds. Advertisements offering bonds to the public never held out the prospect that they would double or triple in value in a short time or yield a hundred-fold or a thousand-fold on the investment almost overnight.

There was never any talk of increased dividends on bonds for the very good sufficient reason that bonds do not pay dividends; they bear interest.

NOW ITS GAMBLING

But now they are gambling in bonds! And it's the wildest sort of gambling, with the most incredible profits or winnings that have been heard of since financial fairy tales were first told.

Needless to say, this lucky speculation has not been carried on in American bonds, national, state, municipal, railroad, public utility, or industrial. Wartime bonds of the imperial German and Prussian governments have been the medium, and some fortunate turns have been made in German municipal bonds.

It is the same sort of speculation that was carried on in German marks but with the rather important differences that to date it has been successful, while the misguided people who put their savings in marks never got even a thrill on their gamble. Today marks are quoted at something like four thousand billion to the dollar, with no purchasers at any price.

PAYABLE IN MARKS

Those who are now rushing in to purchase German wartime bonds apparently ignore the fact that these securities are redeemable in marks—not gold marks, but just plain marks, which means the paper marks with no present value and no prospect of value save in dreams more dreamy than opium ever superinduced.

However, from the moment when it seemed probable that the German reparations problem would be worked out to some sort of a solution some people have had the idea that eventually the bonds of the defunct imperial government would be made good, or would acquire some real value. The buying began in Germany, and it was not long before New York bankers who had handled the German securities began to get inquiries from prospective purchasers. When it was practically certain that the Dawes plan would be accepted the speculation got its real start, and the quotations on the bonds began to skyrocket.

The bankers who have handled the transactions say that the first buyers were for the most part pushcart men, fruit vendors, peddlers, and the

A new band on an Old hat is like an old record on your Victrola-----

Some say old songs are the best—but you never heard of a man looking his best in an old hat. Dry clean your gloves if you must—Hail-sole your shoes if you will!—You can fool part of the people part of the time—but not on hats for Fall! Not necessary to try on a hundred different hats to find the most becoming—you no sooner state your size then we have on the case a dozen to fit your case exactly. No trouble to show them—No bother if you shake your head the wrong way after you've seen them.

like all of foreign extraction, who brought in their small savings and inkling upon exchanging the real money for the apparently worthless bonds even when the bankers advised them not to do so.

To the amazement of the bankers the judgment of these buyers was vindicated. A growing demand for the bonds resulted in an advance in price that was slow at first but soon progressed by leaps and bounds that were incredible. Bonds purchased one day for $5 sold the next day for $1.750. A sailor "invested" a few hundred dollars, and went away on a cruise. When he returned his "securities" had a nominal market value of $500,000.

Three Americans took a chance with $2,000 each. One of them wanted to make their jackpot $15,000 instead of $6,000 but the others demurred. They took down $200,000 on their gamble.

Such are the fairy tales of fortunes suddenly and inexplicably acquired. Of course the bonds have no more real value today than they possessed when they could be purchased at less than the value of waste paper, and there is no assurance that they will ever have any real value. However, as long as the speculation continues it is probable that more fortunes—real or paper—will be made.

A Hobby Will Almost Always Bring Happiness Along With It, Says Antique Collector

New York—Get a hobby and ride it hard if you want to be happy, psychologists and physicians advise.

"Ride it hard enough and it may turn into a fine job," says Mabel Taliaferro, who has just started her friends by forsaking the stage to open an antique shop in Greenwich Village.

"But I certainly never needed any urging to follow my natural inclination to buy up antiques," she explains. "What I needed, probably was restraint. For 25 years, now, I have been collecting until I have two houses stuffed with them from garret to cellar. Something had to be done. Either I had to buy another house or go into business. So I chose the latter."

FORCED INTO IT

It wasn't entirely a matter of choice. She was also shoved into it. Because of her ability to scour the country for some particular piece of curly maple and her persistence in sleuthing down old prints, her possessions were always in demand, and her friends practically forced her into selling as well as collecting.

"Now the stage becomes my hobby and the collecting becomes my job," she laughed. "I don't say that I am never going to act again, because I would tomorrow if I got a part. I really wanted to do, but I would continue my shop and if I were sent out on the road, I would make every town yield up some treasure for it."

"I believe most women would rather buy antiques from a shop than to get them first hand. They haven't confidence in their ability to distinguish good things from bad. My own criterion is simply whether it pleases me or not."

HUSBAND A PARTNER

"I have no feeling for an old chair or desk merely because of its age. It must have beauty as well. It must have gained something through use and association that a new piece cannot have, otherwise I should get new articles."

"In time I am going to specialize on old-prints, hooked rugs and period furniture. And I want to find good, appreciative buyers for lovely old things that people must sacrifice through misfortune or change of circumstances."

Associated with her in her new venture is her husband, J. P. O'Brien, who is an artist and sculptor.

KAUKAUNA TRADE SCHOOL TO OPEN TUESDAY, SEPT. 2

Teachers Expected to Return to Kaukauna by End of Week

Kaukauna—The vocational school in the new municipal building will open for the coming year, on Tuesday, Sept. 2. A. T. Hudson, director, is the first member of the faculty to return from his summer vacation and is at his office engaged on preliminary work. The teachers are expected to return by the end of the week.

S. A. Anderson, instructor in the wood working department, spent the summer at the Stout Institute at Menominee, Wis.; Miss Elizabeth Patterson of the academic department attended the summer school at Chicago university; and Miss Margaret Broude of the home economic department spent her vacation with relatives and friends in the northern part of the state.

While the day school opens Tuesday, Sept. 2, the evening school will not open until Oct. 1. Several changes in the administration and school program are contemplated, but they have not yet been definitely announced. The enrollment last year in the day school was 130 and in the evening school 232.

KEEP STREAM OF WATER PLAYING ON IRON BRIDGE

Kaukauna—Intense heat previous summers has always caused trouble in the operation of drawbridge on the government canal on Lake St. On a hot day the iron expands several inches, making it almost impossible to open the structure without damaging the gearing. On several occasions the services of the fire department has been required to cool the iron and cement with water pumped through long leads of hose. The trouble has been overcome this year by the installation of an electric motor that does the pumping, according to the Charles Walquist, bridge tender. An inch and a half or two inch stream of water plays on the iron and cement during the heated part of the day and eliminates the expansion almost entirely. The new plan was given its first real test Tuesday when the temperature on the exposed portion of the bridge was close to 100 degrees.

MUSIC CONSERVATORY WILL OPEN ON MONDAY

Kaukauna—St. Mary Conservatory of Music will open on Sept. 1. A larger enrollment is anticipated than in former years. Lessons will be given on piano, violin, saxophone, clarinet, cornet, trombone, drums, xylophone, cello. Classes in harmony and history of music also will be conducted. The method used in conducting these classes will be that of the master artists of Bush Conservatory, Chicago.

KAUKAUNA IS READY FOR PRIMARY ELECTION DAY

Kaukauna—Everything is in readiness for primary election next Tuesday. The polls will be open from 6 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening. No registration was held Tuesday.

COMBINED LOCKS WILL ERECT NEW VILLAGE BUILDING

Structure Will House Fire Department, Jail and Hall—Buy Play Equipment

Special to Post-Crescent
Combined Locks—Erection of a new village municipal building and equipping of the grounds at the new school building with playground apparatus are among the latest steps taken by the village board and school board, respectively.

Need of a building to provide a suitable village hall and house the fire department and other departments had been felt by the board for some time. Burst and Phillips, Milwaukee architects, were instructed to prepare plans and these were submitted at the last meeting. The architects were present at that time.

Plans were approved for a structure of red brick and tile with slate roof, to cost approximately $25,000. It will be two story and will contain modern plumbing and fixtures, and will be built opposite the new schoolhouse. The contract will be let quite soon and construction will start immediately thereafter. The board already has authorized ReNoble Construction Co., Kaukauna, to lay the sewer and water mains to the site of the building.

One section of the building will house the village's motor fire truck and other apparatus. Living apartments will be provided above the station for the fire chief, who will look after the equipment. He also will be custodian of the schoolhouse across the street and will see that the grounds and buildings are kept neat and in good order. A suitable hall will occupy the building, meeting a village need. The upper floor will be ample for the use of the board and the public.

ADD PLAY APPARATUS
An expenditure of $500 was authorized by the school board for playground apparatus for the handsome new school building which was finished last year. A giant slide, chutes and other amusement devices will be put up as a means of stimulating recreation among the pupils. The board also awarded a contract to Louis Wolkman of Appleton for 1,000 feet of cement sidewalk in front of the school.

Good progress is being made on the new parish house for the Rev. H. Halinda, pastor of St. Paul Catholic church. Plumbers and electricians are working there now and the place will be completed soon.

Combined Locks has been without its usual mail service since Thursday night of last week. No passenger trains have passed through since the heavy storm at that time which washed out a large section of the track near Dunlap. Service probably will be restored in a day or so.

'MODERN PROBLEMS' HAVE NO PLACE IN 'THREE OF CLUBS'

Valentine Williams Writes Tale
Free from Sex
Appeal

MATT C. ROEMER

In "The Three of Clubs," Valentine Williams has given his readers an interesting tale of romance in the English Secret Service. The chief characters of this extremely plausible story, through most of the capitals of Europe in pursuit of a secret organization of which the three of clubs is the symbol.

Cairdsdale and Virginia Fitzgerald have met at the Washington Arms Conference in which the Englishman participated as a member of his country's diplomatic corps while the woman was acting secretary to her uncle, prominent in American diplomatic circles. They plighted their troth before Cairdsdale was recalled by his chief at the end of the conference, and were to meet in Paris to consummate their union. After making the journey to Paris, the heroine, who is possessed of all the traits we like to see in an American girl tempered somewhat by her association with the court and diplomatic life of foreign nations, retains her faith in her recalcitrant lover. He has failed to keep his promise to meet her or even to give her an indication as to his reason. A mutual acquaintance who also is a junior member of the English diplomatic service gives her a clue at a dinner in Paris, which she sets out to pursue.

The tale which really has its beginning at this point leads the reader among the secret and devious paths of European intrigue, in which monarchist leaders of Austria, Hungary and Germany plot to restore their ancient rule, under the leadership of a trio known as the three of clubs. Two of the members are known, but the identity of the third is kept secret, even from the two associates until the day before the coup is to be made.

A former love whom Cairdsdale meets in pursuit of his dangerous duties leads him to abandon his huping lodge in the forests near Budapest, and to become the guest with her of Count Gellert, a misshapen monster who dwells in medieval state in his ancient castle of Kes, where most of the action is carried out.

Mr. Williams shows not only an unusual aptitude for rousing and maintaining interest, but also an extensive knowledge of the workings of international politics under the surface, and a wide acquaintance of the European capitals. His latest romance is of the same brilliant quality as his stories in the Clubfoot series: the Orange Divan and Island Gold. Originality and plausibility combine to maintain interest at high tension from cover to cover, and the complete absence of modern "problems" which pervade so many of the present day novels is refreshing.

Octogenarian Recalls Impressions of Exposition of 1851

There are not many people alive today whose memory is able to bridge the seventy-five years separating the Colonial Exhibition now under way at Wembley, England, from the great Crystal Palace Exhibition promoted in 1851 by Albert, the Prince Consort. A person who can is Major George Haven Putnam, who is now on his fifty-ninth annual trip abroad and has written his impressions of the two exhibitions for several of the British journals. Major Putnam who recently celebrated his eightieth birthday, wrote in the London Outlook, concerning the two exhibitions:

"One purpose of the Exposition was as stated at the time, to do something towards the development throughout the British islands of an artistic sense and of good taste. We early Victorians were charged with having no realization of beauty. Our furniture was called ugly, our pictures were sharply criticized by the art authorities of the continent; the dresses of English women failed to do justice to their natural charms, and to sum it all up we were Philistines. The Victorian Era in Britain was saved by its literature which was certainly characterized by originality, force, and a full measure of imagination. It is doubtless true that the Exposition did prove of real service in making better known to England the artistic sense in furniture, in dress, and in other directions, which characterized the productions of their continental neighbors, and that defense alone might well have justified the undertaking.

Adventures In The Library

By ARNOLD MULDER

NEW CLASSICS FOR OLD

A group of American writers and scholars is engaged on a piece of work that may prove to be of great significance to American literature. They are publishing a thoroughly revised selection of what they think should be our American classic authors.

Obviously this is a tremendously difficult job but it is very much worth attempting. Even though mistakes are made and some books are included that have no right to be regarded as classics, while others that are regarded as classics by most of us are omitted, yet on the whole it is likely that many a book that is worthy of attention but has been neglected by the crowd will receive recognition in this way.

"The American Library" is the name of the series and the editors are Van Wyck Brooks, Robert Moss Lovett, Albert Jay Nock and John Macy. Admittedly they are iconoclasts but they are more than that; they are ripe scholars as well. Lovett, for instance, was for many years professor of English at the University of Chicago. He is the author of a widely used history of English literature and he is something of an authority on the eighteenth century. Brooks is the author of "The Ordeal of Mark Twain" and of other books that have been somewhat against the stream of contemporary American thought, and Nock and Macy were editors of "The Freeman," which was financially a failure but artistically and intellectually a success.

PARTIAL CHOICE

The judgment of the members of this group is therefore worthy of some respect. It may be assumed that they will not be merely perverse in their selection, choosing books merely because they have been neglected by the crowd and omitting books merely because they have been popular. The books already published in the series are: Melville's "Redburn" and "Israel Potter," Christopher Columbus "Journal," Herold Frederick's "Thoron Ware," and Ambrose Bierce's "In the Midst of Life" and "Can Such Things Be?"

Because Ambrose Bierce and Herman Melville are included in a list of American classics would be no good reason for omitting Hawthorne and Emerson and other universally recognized names, so it will be interesting to see what writers there are in American literature who, in the opinion of the editors, are worthy of recognition but who have been neglected. Benjamin Franklin's autobiography has always been regarded as a classic and it will be no less such because the editors of "The American Library" are publishing Christopher

BOOKS AND BOOK MEN

Mollie Painter-Downes, the fifty-year-old English author of "The Shoreless Sea," a novel published recently by Putnam, has been notified by cable of the remarkable success of her book and the reception accorded it in this country. Miss Painter-Downes is the youngest living novelist, whose work has been published and she follows the reception of her work with an interest born both of being a writer and being a young girl. In London, "The Shoreless Sea" met with sensational success, being accorded three printings in as many weeks after publication.

A rather startling theory of biography is propounded by Marcel Schwob, in the preface to his collection of brief biographies of fascinating but little known personalities, "Imaginary Lives" published by Boni and Liveright. "As an art," he writes, "biography is founded upon choice; for out of chaos of human traits it can create. To create the world, said Leibnitz, God chose the best from the possible. So, like an inferior deity, biography should select unique individuals from the real of human material available. Biography would give us much worth to an obscure actor as it gives to the life of Shakespeare."

Are The Best Sellers Written By Men? No! Women Top The List

To the ladies of the quill, bless 'em! Month in and month out, they top the men in the list of best sellers. As witness the present month—"So Big," by Edna Ferber at the head, followed in order by Margaret Wilson's "The Able McLaughlins," Rose Macaulay's "Told by an Idiot" and Dorothy Canfield's "The Home-Maker."

Percy Marks gains fifth place for the men with "The Plastic Age." Then follows "The Interpreter's House," by Struthers Burr; "Old New York," by Edith Wharton; "The Call of the Canyon," by Zane Grey; "Helms Apparent," by Philip Gibbs, and "Luminox," by Fannie Hurst.

Frank Parker Stockbridge in "The Bookman" is moved to headlines over the missing Edward Bok's autobiography from the list of non-fiction and Gertrude Atherton's "Black Ocean," from the fiction list.

Bok's autobiography has been in the list of non-fiction best sellers since late in 1920. H. G. Wells' "Outline of History" is in its fifth year in the list. The other best sellers in that classification are "Life of Christ," by Papini; "My Garden of Memory," by Kate Douglas Wiggin; "Life and Letters of Walter H. Page," by Burton Hendrick; "The Dance of Life," by Havelock Ellis; "Quiquette," by Emily Post; "Galapagos: World's End," by William Beebe; "Right Off the Chest," by Nellie Revell; "The Outline of Literature," by John Drink-

WOMEN WAIT IN LINE FOR COPY OF 'THE HOMEMAKER'

Dorothy Canfield's Book Most Popular in Appleton Last Week

Dorothy Canfield's "The Home-maker," still is the most popular book in Appleton Public library, according to library attaches who declare that they have a long list of names of people who are waiting for an opportunity to take the story off the shelves. "A Gentleman of Cour age," by Curwood, is not far behind in popularity, librarians said.

"Birds, Their Photographs and Home Life," by A. H. Cordier and "Adventures in Swaziland," by G. R. O'Neil are the non-fiction books called for most often at the library last week. "Adventures in Swaziland" is a true story that reads like a fairy tale, a story which rivals anything out of the Arabian Nights for imaginative quality and vivid power. The book is profusely illustrated with remarkable photographs taken by Dr. O'Neil while in Swaziland.

Popular books in the children's department were Lang's numerous fairy tales for girls and for boys, books telling how to make aeroplanes and kites, such as, Hall's "Carpentry for Boys," "Handicraft for Boys," and Beard's "American Boy's Handy-book."

How the Motor Industry Set the Pace for Highway Building

The "horseless carriage" of yesterday is now being produced as the modern automobile at the rate of 4,000,000 a year. The total number of motor vehicles registered in the United States is over 16,000,000.

And every automobile produced today is a good automobile, economically serving business and recreation needs of people in every station of life.

But there is an obstacle standing in the way of its maximum service to owners.

For while the automobile industry made paved highways an economic necessity, the mileage of such roads is today years behind the requirements of modern traffic.

Happily motorists everywhere are boosting for more and wider paved highways.

And extensive experience has taught them that Concrete Highways are one of the best all-around investments they can make—an investment that pays big dividends.

As one of our 16,000,000 motorists you know better than anyone else the need for more and wider Concrete Roads. Start now to help your local officials provide them.

a book as "Certain People of Importance" more is expected than is found in Kathleen Norris' latest work, "Rose of the World."

The characters are unreal and the theme an old one. Rosalind Kirby and the son of her employer, Jack Talbot, love each other, but, to please his mother, young Talbot marries a girl of his own social standing, leaving Rose to find what solace she can with Clyde Bainbridge, manager and shareholder in the Talbot Iron Works. Both marriages are failures, and the story drags along with each trying with almost too saint-like an effort to make the best of their seemingly blasted lives until it is discovered that Rose is half owner of the iron works. Then everything happens all once.

Rose's husband, who is too impossibly brutal, starts out to make things uncomfortable for Jack, but is pushed over the cliff on which his house stands.

Miss Norris ensures her "happy ending" by having Jack's wife, Edith die the same night, leaving the lovers in each other's arms—the dead wife still upstairs.

For those preferring the fast pace of a well-complicated mystery tale there comes in this week's book bundle, "Humdrum House" (Little, Brown), by Maximilian Foster.

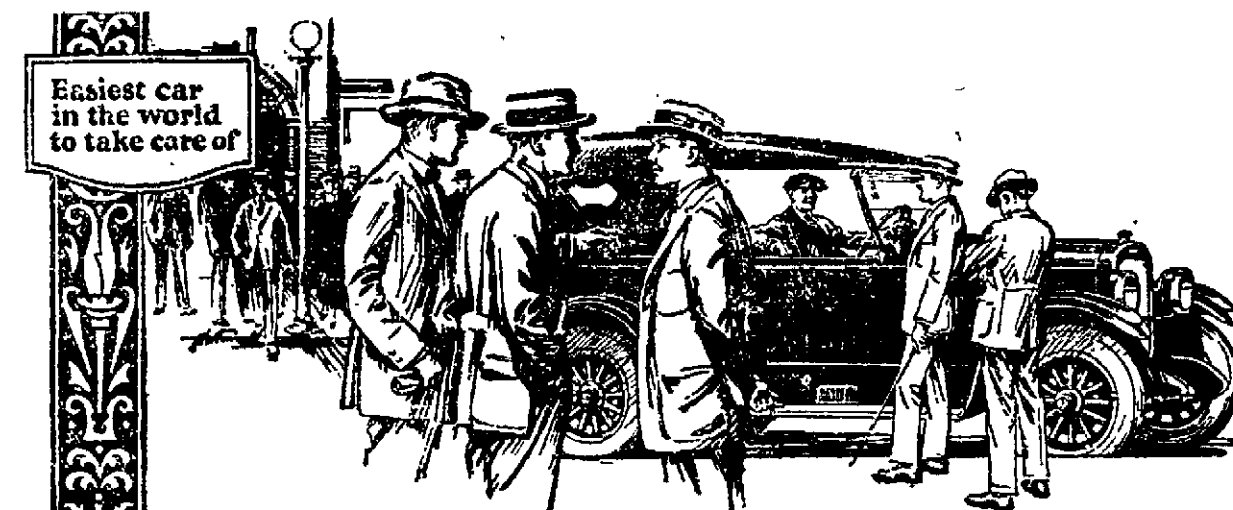

The story is written in the tempo to which magazine serials are generally set and is guaranteed to send the reader to bed at 2 o'clock in the morning.

The hinge upon which the mystery swings is a bit improbable. A veteran of the great war comes from a strange island to a Connecticut town as the result of a pledge made to a buddy on a battlefield in France. He finds all sorts of things amiss at the New England country home, and involved plots fairly tumble over each other. The writing is in no manner as good as the idea.

A FUNNY CLOTHES-LINE

Weeny, the elephant, and Nancy and Nick left Mrs. Lion's house in such a hurry that they almost forgot their satchel.

Weeny just had time to grab it with his trunk before Mister Lion came roaring after them.

But no wonder Mister Lion was cross. Weeny had eaten up every bit of his dinner, soup, biscuits, marmalade and all!

"Where's my dinner? I want my dinner," roared poor Mister Lion. "You said you were having crocodile wings and guinea pig tails, you have as many now as you had before. Goodbye."

And away he trotted down the road with Nancy and Nick on his back, giggling so hard that his sides shook up and down and it was all the children could do to stick on.

By and by he stopped. "Ho, hum," he said, putting his satchel down and wiping his tiny eyes with his trunk. "I am having the best time on my vacation. But I do wish I could find a peanut tree."

"I told you that peanuts don't grow on trees," said Nick. "Did you?" said Weeny. "So you did. I remember. You said they grew in paper bags."

"No, I didn't," said Nick. "I said—"

But Weeny interrupted him. "I do declare. I didn't know we had come so far. Do I or do I not see Mister Giraffe's head over those tree tops. Get me my specks, Nancy."

So Nancy slid down and opened his satchel and gave him his specks and he hooked them behind his ears. "Yes, sir. That's him," said Weeny.

"That's he," corrected Nick. "It's him," said Weeny crossly. "I guess I know my geography, so do. I know it's him because he looks as though his ears had been jerked on with clothes pins, such funny horns he has. Hello there, Mister Giraffe!"

Mister Giraffe looked their way and made some funny motions with his head.

"What's he doing?" asked Nick. "It's wagging," said Weeny. "Giraffes can't say a word—no voices at all. So they've learned to wig-wag."

"What's he saying?" asked Nancy. "He said to please come and help him," said Weeny.

So over they went. "My wife went to a party and left the washing out to dry," wig-wagged Mister Giraffe. She always uses my neck on Mondays for the clothesline. But I got a crick in it and straightened up, and the clothes all fell off. She'll be as cross as a plus-mark when she comes back. I was wondering what to do."

"We'll help you," said Nancy. So she and Nick and Weeny picked up the clothes and hung them on Mister Giraffe's neck again, while he obligingly stretched it out. "Goodbye," said Weeny. "We're going on our vacation."

Mister Giraffe didn't answer. He didn't dare to wig-wag or the clothes would have slid off again. (To Be Continued)

SMITHMEN WILL INVADE MENASHA AND OSHKOSH

TWO WINS WILL PUT APPLETON ON TOP OF HEAP

Records of Two Previous Tilts Promise Well for Double Bill, Sunday, Monday

Appleton club of the State League faces a hard schedule Sunday and Monday, being down on the program to clash with the Falls at Menasha on the Sabbath and with the Ithig Washers at Oshkosh on Labor day. The score between the Neenah-Menasha tribe and Smith's aggregation is even, each having defeated the other twice this year, but the Papermakers have a score to settle with the Oshkosh clan, who won 5 to 3 in the only previous game between the two this season.

The Papermakers are hopeful of landing on top of the heap in these two contests. If they succeed in taking the Rushites to a drubbing and defeating the Oshkosh tribe they will be tied for first with the Falls and after the showing made by them in their last two games it looks as though their hope may be justified. Two weeks ago they nosed out the strong Green Bay club, 3 to 1, although the Graybears were regarded as strong favorites because they had won seven straight games, and last Sunday they conquered Sheboygan, 5 to 2.

Les Smith, his brother Red, and Edie Stack are among the leading swat-smiths of the McGilligan loop, and promise to stay there. Les added to his batting average Sunday afternoon with a circuit drive after Marty Lamers had set him a good example, and the Welsberger brothers and Edie Stumpf each managed to slam out a two-bagger.

In their last game with the Falls the Smithmen got to Rush for 15 hits, one of them a homerun, one three-bagger and four for two boses. If they can repeat this performance and at the same time keep their fielding up to the standard set in the last two games, they should have little trouble in managing both the Falls and Indians.

QUESTIONS

1. The other day in the summary of a big league game I noticed where a certain player had been used twice as a pinch runner. Was this a mistake in print or could such a thing happen?—D. Y.
2. Fletcher delivers a batted ball while not in his proper position on the rubber. No one was on base at that time. The ball was scarcely over the plate, but since it was illegal delivery the umpire ruled it a ball as per the rules. If the batter struck at the ball and hit safely would it have counted?—D. F. G.
3. When a fielder throws his glove at a batted or thrown ball is it necessary that the glove come into contact with the ball for the fielder to be penalized? A claims the mere throwing of the glove must come into contact with the ball. B insists the glove must come into contact with the ball. Who is right and what is the penalty in each case?—S. A. K.

ANSWERS

The situation was made possible by the manager of a certain team permitting a player to run for the regular who was injured. Since the regular intended to resume play when his injury was dressed, the manager of the team in the field permitted a player to run for him without the status of either player being affected, so as to avoid a tedious delay. Later in the game the manager called on the same player to act as substitute runner for a slow man who had hit safely.

2. If a batter elects to strike at an illegally delivered ball it counts as a strike or whatever happens. In the case cited the safe hit made was legal.

3. B is correct in his contention. The glove must come into contact with the ball for a penalty to be inflicted. It is two bases, if a thrown ball, three bases if a batted ball.

BABE MUST GET PERMIT TO PLAY FROM HIS BOSS

Chicago—If Babe Ruth wishes to play exhibition games in San Francisco, after the close of the American league pennant race for the benefit of the poor and orphans, he will be obliged to obtain the consent of all the American league clubowners, including Col. Ruppert, president of the Yankees.

Ruth, appealing to Commissioner Landis for permission to play after the season, was advised Tuesday that the commission was without power to grant his request.

WOMAN MAT CHAMP WILL MEET "IRISH WILDCAT"

Shullsburg—P. H. Moore, known as the Irish Wildcat, will soon meet Virginia Mercereau, world's champion woman wrestler in a finish match here, according to Al Ketchel, the woman's manager. The woman wrestler took up this career after becoming a star basketball player.

Notre Dame Faces Stiff Grid Tests

South Bend, Ind.—Speaking of tough football schedules, don't overlook Notre Dame's this fall. Ten games will be played with Princeton, Army, Georgia Tech, Wisconsin, Nebraska and Carnegie Tech, coming on successive Saturdays.

Here are six strong aggregations the Rockne lads will meet in a dizzy row. Moreover, four of them will be on the gridiron, Georgia Tech and Nebraska being the lone home contests.

Of the half dozen, four are inter-sectional brushes which should furnish a pretty direct line on the status of the Indiana contingent at the end of the season.

Year after year Notre Dame plays a maximum number of games and about as hard a listing as any team in the country tackles. Rockne believes in plenty of competition. He also wants quality. And he gets both.

PROSPECTS ARE ROSY FOR GREEN BAY PRO SEASON

Reports to Board of Directors of Packers Show Situation Is Favorable

Green Bay—An air of optimism pervaded at the meeting of the board of directors of the Green Bay Football corporation held in the council chambers at the city hall.

Reports were filed on the sale of box seat tickets, and according to Chairman Ray Evers the outlook is favorable but there still remains a lot of work to be accomplished. In speaking of the sales campaign, Mr. Evers said: "Our greatest difficulty so far has been in reaching prospective ticket holders. In some cases, members of the committee have made a half dozen trips to the same place, only to find their 'customer' out."

"I am confident that, if we can reach the football fans, we can dispose of the box seats. We are still holding the old reservations from last year for the same occupants of the seats. During the next ten days, we plan to speed up the arrival and hope to have the sales campaign completed successfully by Sept. 1."

Capt. Curly Lambeau, of the Packers team, attended the meeting and gave the board of directors first hand information about the players who have been signed and those in prospect. According to Capt. Lambeau, the Packers of 1924, will be the greatest football machine that ever represented Green Bay on the gridiron.

One of the directors asked the Packers captain: "How about ends?" This was his reply: "You can rest assured that we will have a good running mate to O'Donnell. We have our lines out for another good wing man and it is very likely that his name will be made public within a few days. I can confidently say that our other end will be on a par with O'Donnell, who last year, while playing with Duluth, was rated as one of the best in the professional league."

ROD AND REEL

M. J. V. FOSE

ORIGIN OF SPINNERS

Undoubtedly this little tale of the old west will elucidate the "birth of the blade" which in recent years has brought more "fins" to the frying pan than any lure yet devised. So if ye followers of the six strip are ready for a treat, we're off:

An ancient prospector of the old west, camping for the night beside a mountain lake, happened to be washing his fish kit in the clear cool water, when accidentally the spoon slipped from his fingers and slithered down through the water and bang! Out of its hiding place into the clear water boiled an old lake trout and hit the spoon with evident intent of bending it double and devouring it.

The prospector, with the instinct of an angler and the ingenuity of a Yankee recovered his tin spoon, cut off the handle, bored a hole in each end of the bowl, knotted a line through one end and tied a hook in the other, thus originated the spoon hook, as it was called in olden days, which since then has developed into the present day spinner.

Since the origination of spoon, many offsprings in different shapes and sizes have appeared on the market and today its use is universal. It is a lure one can use on a fly rod as well as the short bait casting rod and will lure almost any game fin that will strike at a moving object in both fresh and salt waters.

TYGERS UPSET DOPE OF SPRING TRAINING CAMPS

Last spring during training camp season the experts counted the Tygers out of the race because of a supposed weakness at second base. They said the Cobblers didn't have a chance to cop—wouldn't even be in the running. But the Tygers seem to have upset the dope.

Lawrence Grid Squad Will Learn New Plays Under Catlin's Hand

Harry (Dutch) Sylvester Probably Will Assist New Mentor By Teaching Frosh and Helping with Varsity.

Lawrence college football huskies, when they report for their first practice on Monday, Sept. 22, will begin learning a brand new system of football under the tutelage of their new coach, Mark Catlin, maker of champions. Catlin has issued a formal call to his men to begin work on Sept. 22, advising them that they have only two weeks to prepare for their first game of the season, to be played with St. Norbert college on Oct. 4.

The first few weeks probably will be the most difficult for coach and for grid men because the players will be obliged to learn almost an entirely new system of play. Football followers who remember Catlin's great teams, recall that his method was entirely different from that used by most of the other coaches working with colleges that played here. Catlin isn't much for beef and brute strength, depending more on speed and quick thinking.

WANTS SPEED AND WEIGHT
In late years it has been customary for coaches to put their extraordinary fast men on the ends, not paying a great deal of attention to their size, and using the big, husky fellows in the line. Catlin wants fast men on the ends and he also wants them to be big. His method of offense and defense, more especially the latter, calls for big men who can crush the opposition.

Harry (Dutch) Sylvester, one of the greatest stars Lawrence has produced, probably will coach the freshmen team and assist Catlin to prepare the varsity squad. Dr. Samuel Flantz has been negotiating with Sylvester and it is understood that formal announcement of his addition to the coaching staff will be made in a few days.

WILL WORK TOGETHER
Catlin and Sylvester have worked together and Sylvester knows Catlin's style. He not only will be able to drill the frosh in the fundamentals of the game so they will be more valuable next year when they are eligible for the varsity, but will be of great help in drilling the regulars before the big games.

Catlin has been working on a plan of campaign for several weeks and no doubt will be ready with the first practice to put a strenuous conditioning schedule in operation. Catlin believes in putting his men in the best possible physical condition before he begins the real work of building up a football team. The splendid condition of his men has been largely responsible for the success of his grid teams in the past.

Y. M. C. A. TENNIS TOURNAMENT WILL START THURSDAY

Ten Men Enter Events and Pairings Are Completed for Competition

Thursday, Aug. 28, has been set as the opening day of the Y. M. C. A. tennis tournament here, and all arrangements have been completed for the event. Ten men have entered and have been paired, and the courts have been put in good shape. This tournament was planned to enhance interest in the annual city championship competition which this year is scheduled for the next two weeks in September. Tennis, like all other outdoor games, has suffered considerably from unfavorable weather conditions. Many of the dirt or clay courts have been spoiled completely and extensive repairs will have to be made before they can be used again. The "Y" courts are well drained and sustained very little harm, so they now are in excellent condition.

Following are the pairings in the tournament:

- FIRST ROUND
1. G. Trentlage vs. C. Hill.
  2. C. Laeche vs. Ted Xistris.
  3. H. Menzies vs. H. Williams.
  4. W. A. Hornes vs. C. Bacheider.
  5. R. H. Hannum vs. J. Hantebel.
- SECOND ROUND
- A. Winner of (1) vs. winner of (2).
  - B. Winner of (3) vs. winner of (4).
  - Winner of (5) draws bye.
- In the next round the winner of A plays the winner of (5) while the winner of B is idle, and in the finals the survivor of this match meets the winner of B for the championship.

GALLOPING GOLF

GALLOPING golf is exclusive form of pastime featuring aristocratic indulgence in advanced stages.

TO BE GALLOPING GOLFER YOU MUST OWN STABLE IN NEWPORT, OFFICE IN WALL STREET AND A MANSION IN RIVERSIDE DRIVE.

It's nobby sport for scions of wealth, commuting members of royalty, haughty head waiters and others who can order demi tasse without blushing.

You use horses instead of caddies in mounted golf, except you don't use them so hard. A full-grown horse will stand only so much cussing.

England and America cross infuriated mallets for polo horrors of two continents next month, with U. S. G. A. rules prevailing. This means all fashionable drinking must be done on clubhouse veranda.

Outcome of international match will be settled definitely and beyond gray flicker of doubt whether infants brought up on canned okra soup are superior to those who chew plug cut by instinct.

Polo is greatly reminiscent of biped golf in that proficiency entitles players to dress up like a cross between commander of Holly Springs and Miss. home guards and pancake chauffeur at Child's.

You wear neck-length boots, natty duck knickers, open-face sport shirts and lotty look of scorn for anybody whose name isn't blusterously embroidered in blue book.

TAKES A BRAVE GUY TO BE A GALLOPING GOLFER. TAKES A BRAVE GUY EVEN TO DRESS LIKE ONE.

Etiquette demands you stop play and apologize if your head inadvertently comes in contact with downward swish of opponent's mallet. Road good mallets can't be picked up every day.

Polo horses are picked for alertness. Some are said to be almost human in their intelligence.

To us, however, this sounds like going out of your way to take a knock at a defenseless quadruped.

Philadelphia—Joe Dundee of Baltimore, was awarded the judges' decision over Bud Christensen of Philadelphia in ten rounds. And Jose Lombardo of Panama, featherweight, won over Al Gordon of Philadelphia in ten rounds.

Giants Defeat Cubs, 11 To 9, By Four Run Rally In Last Stanza

Less Than Quarter of Season Remains for Yankees to Increase Half-game Lead Over Senators.

Less than a quarter of the season remains in the American league pennant race for the New York Yankees to increase their lead of less than one half a game over the Washington Senators in second place, who in turn hold a three and a half game advantage over Detroit in third place.

Washington split a doubleheader with the Browns in the Capitol city Tuesday, losing the first game, 7 to 0, and winning the latter, 5 to 2. The Yankees and Cleveland at New York and the Tigers at Boston remained idle because of rain.

Urban Shocker, pitching ace of the Browns, held the Washington club to five scattered hits in the first game, while St. Louis nipped three Washington twirlers for 11 safeties. In the second engagement, Ogden of the Senators was never in trouble. He allowed eight hits but kept them well scattered while his teammates were collecting 11 blows from Danforth.

Connie Mack's Athletics won a hard fought 12-inning game from the White Sox, 4 to 3. Joe Hauser, Philadelphia first baseman, got his twenty-first homer of the season off Faber. It took three Giant pitchers to turn back the hard hitting Cubs in a wild jamboree in which both teams hit hard and often, the Giants getting 20 safeties to the Cubs' 13. After they had scored six runs in the first and one in the second, the Giants lost the lead under the persistent battering of the Chicago club, and in the ninth found themselves two runs to the bad. Going to bat for the last time, they pulled a regular Giant rally, sending four runs across the pan in a flurry of base hits to win a much needed game, 11 to 9.

Brooklyn, by defeating St. Louis, 7 to 4, in a game in which Rogers Hornsby cracked out his twenty-second homer of the season, gained half a game on Pittsburgh, which leads the Dodgers in third place by three games. The Pirates split their doubleheader with the Phillies, winning the first game, 6 to 1, and dropping the second, 3 to 1.

Cincinnati hit the offerings of Benton of the Braves hard and often, winning the last game of the series, 7 to 0.

ADVERTISERS FIGHT TO RISE FROM CELLAR POST

Rotary and Ad Club Thursday afternoon will fight to decide which of the two clubs is to occupy the cellar position in the Lark Twilight Baseball league, when they meet to play off a game postponed from June 30. The Rotarians have won 2 out of 7 games, while the Advertisers have taken 2 out of eight. The Publicity experts are going strong and look for an easy victory.

Rotary has still another contest to play off with the Kiwanis. If the Rotarians should upset the dope and beat the Admen and then lose to the Kiwanis, as they are likely to do, they will be tied for last place with the Advertisers and a playoff will be in order.

FREMONT CLUB SWAMPS WINNECONNE, 10 TO 2

Fremont Sunday afternoon easily swamped Winneconne, 10 to 2, when Wall held the invaders to five hits while he was pulling down 15 of them by the strikeout route. In the meantime three Winneconne pitchers, Boynton, Birsch and Koch were hit 12 times and registered but six strikeouts.

Having conquered both Winneconne and the Fox River Paper Co. of Appleton in recent games, the Fremonters are looking forward to an easy victory over Greenville Sunday.

VETERINARY MAN ADDS FUR FARMS TO HIS PRACTICE

Dr. William Madson Attends
National Convention of Doctors

With fur farming becoming a potent industry in the United States, veterinarians are entering a new field of practice in dealing with the propagation and ills of silver black foxes, according to Dr. William Madson, who returned Monday from the 4-day convention of the American Veterinary Medical association at Des Moines, Iowa. He was one of 15 Wisconsin men in attendance at the gathering of about 1,500 doctors.

Lectures and clinics at the convention gave veterinarians an education in the treatment of foxes, many of which are raised in this locality. There are 800 fox farms in the United States and 15,000 animals on them, according to one of the speakers. Cats are used successfully to mother fox pups and the foxes may be tamed with proper handling, it was said. Mention was made of the research into fur farming which is being made by the college of agriculture at Madison.

ELECT MERILLAT

Dr. L. A. Merrillat of Chicago, who spoke at a veterinary convention in Appleton three years ago, was elected national president. Portland, Ore., was chosen as the next convention city.

Constructive health movements which the veterinarians have favored will be pushed more vigorously than ever, Dr. Madson declared. Pasteurization of milk is not urged as strongly nowadays as cleanliness of dairies, because it is found that some of the important vitamins are destroyed by the process and it is necessary to add orange juice to pasteurized milk fed babies in order to make it complete in nourishment. Tuberculin testing of cattle will be advocated more strongly than ever and inspection of dairies will be stressed. Certified milk, meaning that it comes from dairies under rigid sanitation inspection, was strongly advocated. More cleanliness in barns and dairy buildings, better ventilation of buildings, use of white coats by those doing the milking and handling the milk are to be emphasized.

NEED MORE HORSES

SEYMOUR YOUTH IN STATE FAIR CONTEST

Leon Schulz' Preliminary
Score Higher Than That of Last Year's Winner

Great confidence has been placed in the ability of young Leon Schulz of Seymour, who has gone to the state fair at Milwaukee to represent Outagamie-co in the state spelling, arithmetic and writing contests.

In the county contests using the state fair requirements as a basis Leon scored an average of 96.2-3, which was one point higher than the highest record made at the state fair last year. His standing in the spelling contest was 100 per cent. He is a son of Otto Schulz, R. 4, Seymour, and graduated this year from the Pioneer school, Osborn.

Last year Outagamie-co was not represented at the state fair contests. The winner was Miss Esther Ziebarth, Eau Claire-co, whose average was 95.68. Her standings were 94 in arithmetic, 93 in spelling and 95 in writing.

Fifty-four counties are represented this year in the state fair contest. In all but ten instances the representatives are from rural districts and 45 of the 54 pupils are girls.

"PEAK" CROWD AT SWIMMING POOL

Warm Weather Sends Hundreds of Bathers to Municipal "Beach"

Monday and Tuesday were "peak days" at the municipal swimming pool at the city waterworks plant. Although actual count is never taken of the number of boys and girls and adults that go there to bathe, it is estimated that the average the past few weeks has been about 500 a day. The cool weather and the rains which prevailed this summer, of course, reduced the number when compared with that of the previous summer. Tuesday which started out very warm, was expected to break all attendance records of the summer.

The attendance is divided about equally between boys and girls among children, but older girls make waiting at both places at those times. The beach is on highway 114, two miles east of Waverly.

This outing will be confined to members of Waverly or other Masonic lodges, Eastern Star and DeMolay and affiliated orders and their families. Those taking degree work also will be admitted. Invitations are being sent to a number of Masonic lodges of the nearby community.

The first county teachers institute of the new school year which had been planned for Friday and Saturday of this week will have to be postponed because the remodeling of the circuit court chambers of the courthouse, where the meetings were to be held, will not be completed before Friday.
